HANSACANYON IS THE LATEST BATHROOM COLLECTION BY BRUNO SACCO

NORCROSS, Ga. (May 2007) – Hansa continues to define innovation by introducing the Hansacanyon, a monolithically shaped fixture with a bold stream of illuminated water. The extraordinary faucet is designed by former director of design for Mercedes-Benz, Bruno Sacco.

“We are honored to continue our work with Bruno Sacco,” says Chris Marshall, president and CEO of Hansa and KWC AMERICA. “He succeeded in giving form to water.”

Created to accentuate the pleasure of the water experience, the Hansacanyon incorporates geometric styling with minimalist design. Complete with electronic sensors, the bold, open water flow is illuminated by an LED light band that reads from blue to red, depending on water temperature. The electronic touch pad controls on/off on the right side and the temperature on the left. The Hansacanyon is also offered in a tub spout with a completely concealed mixing valve that allows the linear point to create a wide and sumptuous waterfall effect.
